  Note: This certificate does not affirm that the association has met all the requirements of the law and registrar, but only that as mentioned, the association has submitted annual reports subject to the law and the registrar's guidelines, and no issues have been found in its activity that justify revoking the certificate.
 The Registrar of Association conducts unscheduled audits in associations throughout the year, even after issuing a Proper Management Certificate. Issues found in the association after issuing the certificate could lead to its revocation or revision. We recommend checking in the Corporation Authority website – Registrar of Associations and Public Benefit Corporations whether the certificate is in force.
 In addition, the association's reports may be reviewed for free in the GuideStar website, as well as peruse the association file for a fee.
